

Using The Altar with Flower

- Optimum Temperature Range: 450°F - 625°F
  - 450°F - 500°F: Low temperature, flavor saver, lots of terpenes, less vapor
  - 500°F - 550°F: Medium temperature, good flavor, medium vapor
  - 550°F - 625°F: High temperature, less flavor, more vapor
- Required Accessories:
  - The Scepter or another vaporization wand
  - The Chalice or another diffusion bowl
  - A rig, bong, or similar with a glass-on-glass slide
- The Apparatus or included multi-tool is helpful as well.

Step-by-Step Instructions:

1. Place the Scepter in the axial heater and set the desired temperature.
2. While waiting for the Scepter to heat up (approximately 10-15 minutes for initial heat up, and 1-2 minutes to reheat):

Grind your flower to a medium-fine consistency and gently pack it into the Chalice. The Chalice functions best when 1/3 to 2/3 full.

3. Place the Chalice in your glassware.
4. Once the Scepter is hot, place it on top of the Chalice, with the larger side facing downward like the brim of a top hat.
5. Wait approximately 5-10 seconds for the Chalice to warm up.
6. Inhale through your glass piece, the initial pull may produce less vapor, as the material heats up, with additional pulls creating more vapor.
7. Once vapor production ceases, return the Scepter to the coil to reheat.
8. Stir the Chalice and gently repack the flower.
9. Place the hot Scepter back on the Chalice and inhale again.
10. Repeat steps 7-9 until vapor production has ceased or the taste becomes undesirable.
11. Empty the Chalice
12. Repeat steps 1-11 until you are feeling good

Remember to exercise caution when handling the hot Scepter and Chalice, and always use the Altar in a well-ventilated area.

I like to turn on the Altar at the beginning of a sesh or when I want to relax at home, and leave it on, with The Scepter hot and ready to go, so that I do not have to wait for the initial heat up period every bowl. The Altar is designed to have low energy consumption when on, and can remain on for extended periods with The Scepter in the coil without damaging The Altar or Scepter.

NEVER LEAVE THE ALTAR ON AND UNATTENDED! treat it like a hot stovetop or a lit candle.
